This little strip known as the "Pacific coast," has never had a cyclone nor a tornado, and never wants one, but what looked like a starter made things lively south of Genevieve street at four o'clock yesterday afternoon just when the rain was falling several hundred feet a minute. FALL OF A HOUSE.

Probable Fatal Injury of One of the Workmen.

At Alderbrook, August Norburg has been putting up a two-story dwelling 36x54 feet which was almost finished, the doors and windows remaining to be put in. Yesterday he and a carpenter named Jno. Holmgren, a single man aged 42 years, were at work in the building when as quick as a lightning flash a gust of wind from the south struck the building which collapsed and fell in a shapeless mass. Men who heard the crash ran to mass. Men who heard the crash ran to the spot and succeeded in getting Nor-burg out unhart. Holmgren was struck and held down by some of the heavy timbers and when found was in a sitting posture wedged tightly beneath some beams. He was got out as soon as possi-ble and carried to St. Mary's hospital. It was found that his spine was injured, and his skull fractured, and that he had sustained internal injuries. Last evensustained internal injuries. Last even-ing he was vomiting blood and suffering intensely. It is the opinion of the physician that he cannot recover. Such furi-ous blows of wind are fortunately infra-quent. The air was still immediately before and after the miniature cyclone. and nothing else in the vicinity was dis-turbed except some trees growing near the house which were torn up by the roots in the rush of the whirlwind which

Were I rich, I'd publish a new kind of ewspaper, that would be both novel and do a body good to read. I'd have my James Dobsen, the man who was killed near Walla Walla by Fred E. Lux, Thursday night was English by birth and was around us all the time; note the deeds of unselfishness, tell about the self denial that is practiced by so many continually, talk about all the good nen and women instead of the bad; write up the heroes and heroines that we find in huts and palaces, everywhere, and the love that wreathes itself around the unhappiness, lightens the labor, pardons unkindness and neglect, and pervades all things in its beautiful, silent way, just as a rose fills a room with fragrance you can inhale but not describe, and touches everything with its invisible hands; and correspondents, agents, writers and rething with its invisible hands; and instead of weeping and waiting for the awful storm to burst, my readers should take a cheerful view of life, and be thinking that in a little while the gray mists would change into sunshine.—Peck's

The large American wooden ships Charles E. Moody, Henry Villard and W. H. Connor sailed for the north yesterday to load back with coal. This is rather unremunerative business, as the pay is only $2.50 per ton for a round trip that will take from 40 to 60 days to make, and shows to what straits American shipowners are reduced to find employment for process their vessels. Recently a cott would be any. ers are reduced to find employment for their vessels. The Portland News understands from good authority that the Oregon Pacific railroad will begin work on its extension to Boise in about a month. A number of preliminary surveys have been made, and Minto pass, said to have a much lighter grade than the crossing of the Coast range at Yaquina bay, has been selected across the Cascades. The selected route proceeds up from Corvallis through Albany, and crosses the South Santiam. It is understood that this work is for the purpose of a direct connection with the purpose of a direct connection with the Chicago & Northwestern, which is back ing the O. P.

The deer trails are already overstocked The deer trails are already overstocked with men (not hunters), for all they have to do is just hide behind a rock or log and wait for the deer to come within ten or fifteen steps of them and shoot them down. The Albany Democrat has been informed that there are some who leave the forequarters in the woods and only bring in the hide and hams. If this is the case they should be prosecuted and because we had the "gall" to ask him to pay his subscription, due for five years.
